Certification of Travel Clinic Costs for Graduate School Ph.D. Students

The Graduate School has created a "Health Preparation for Travel" fund that will provide graduate students working on their dissertation with support for the cost of inoculations at Yale University Health Services that are required for travel outside the United States.

Students will receive a credit on their bursar account once they obtain certification from the DGS and from the Travel Clinic (below). Students must also provide copies of receipts for travel prescriptions in order to be reimbursed for those costs.
